

PHOTO ESSAY

Floods Destroy, Flood Nurture

Photos by SEN NITH

After harvesting grass at flooded rice fields, farmers take it to sell in flooded villages in Kandal province, Cambodia for use as animal feed.

Children too bring the water greens they collected to sell in their village in Donkeo district, Takeo province, Cambodia.

A child leaves for school in Chau Phu district, An Giang province, across the border in Vietnam.

(This pictures were done under the 'Our Mekong: A Vision amid Globalisation' media fellowship programme, implemented by IPS Asia-Pacific and supported by the Rockefeller Foundation.)

